

Admissions policy

Meiji university of integrated medicine (MUIM) was founded upon “the spirit in which MUIM encourages its students to view the spirit of harmony (unity) as the quintessence, to integrate the Eastern and Western medicine, and to contribute to the society.” Thus MUIM aims to train its students to become active and sincere health professionals, furthermore, to contribute toward the health and welfare of the nation.

MUIM provides its students with the rich curriculum to achieve the above goals and aims to encourage them to expand the following skills:

1. sincerity and genuineness
2. ability to integrate the Oriental and Occident medicine
3. ability to contribute to the development of the health, medical services and welfare of the nation
4. ability to contribute to the community accompanied by the consideration of their demand as well as to react to the internationalization of medicine.

MUIM requires students who have the following talents:

1. self-discipline
2. carefulness for others
3. communications skills
4. willingness to learn for lifetime

Undergraduate

School of acupuncture and moxibustion requires students who have the following talents:

1. ability to interact with people and exhibit sincerity and genuineness
2. willingness to learn the knowledge and skills of acupuncture and moxibustion to contribute to the health of the society

School of health science and medical care requires students who have the following talents:

1. sincerity and genuineness, and willingness to improve themselves
2. willingness to learn the advanced knowledge and fine skills of judo therapy to contribute to the health of the society

School of nursing science requires students who have the following talents:

1. enthusiasm for nursing, willingness to improve themselves and ability to learn individually
2. willingness to exercise the nursing skills to contribute to the society and to endeavor to pursue a nursing career

Postgraduate school

Master of acupuncture and moxibustion requires students who have the following talents:

1. enthusiasm for research on acupuncture and moxibustion

2. professional ethics, carefulness and respect for others
3. enthusiasm for the science of acupuncture and moxibustion
4. willingness to make persistent attempts at research and clinical studies
5. willingness to achieve the highly advanced knowledge and skills of clinical acupuncture and moxibustion

Master of clinical acupuncture and moxibustion requires students who have the following talents:

1. pride in and willingness to thrive on their profession
2. willingness to learn continuously
3. willingness and passion to pursuit clinical acupuncture and moxibustion as a highly sophisticated profession
4. enthusiasm for integrated medicine and willingness to contribute to the progression and development of the latest medicine

Master of acupuncture and moxibustion (corresponding course) requires students who have the following talents:

1. enthusiasm for research on acupuncture and moxibustion
2. professional ethics, carefulness and respect for others
3. enthusiasm for the science of acupuncture and moxibustion
4. willingness to make persistent attempts at research and clinical studies